AROUND THE TOWN

Dr. Stevens of Olds was a visitor with Dr. G. M. Reid on Tuesday.

T. Stark is going to play baseball with the Edmonton team for this season.

Mr. R. LeBlanc, manager of the Cloverhill creamery, was a visitor at Calgary for a few days last week.

There will be a baseball meeting on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the Golden West sample rooms.

The many friends of Ralph Metzger will be sorry to learn that he is in the Edmonton hospital. His eyes are troubling him.

Jim Reed is sporting a fine new Ford auto. He "auto" be able to manage it all right because he has always been fond of spirited animals.

Owing to the busy time of the year the W. C. T. U. have postponed their regular monthly meeting. The May subject will be taken up at the June meeting.

Appendicitis seems to be fashionable just now. Felix Jones, son of M. E. Jones the butcher, was taken to Calgary on Saturday last suffering from that disease.

German Reformed Church services will be held in the Presbyterian church on Wednesday evening, May 14th, at 7.30 o'clock. All German speaking people are cordially invited to attend this service.

Both the Union and Royal Banks will be closed on Friday, which is Arbor Day and a bank holiday. The postoffice will also be closed with the exception of a short time after the 10 o'clock and 2 o'clock trains arrive.

Mr. J. W. Moates and Mr. Robson of Red Oak, Iowa, were visiting with Mr. B. A. St. Clair for a short time this week. They are taking a trip through the west and stated that they liked this section of the country better than any they had seen yet.

Y. P. A. rally at the Ev. church at 7.30 p. m., Sunday, May 11th. An extensive programme of story and song will be rendered. All are cordially invited. On Mother's Day, May 11th, at 2 p. m., a programme setting forth the value of parental interests will be given.

The dedication and opening of the new I.O.O.F. lodge rooms, which was to have taken place on Thursday evening, May 8th, has been postponed until Thursday evening, May 15th, on account of the inability of the Grand Master to be present on the former date.

J. L. Anderson, who has been a well known resident of the town for a good many years, left for his homestead near Alaska on Wednesday. Jack has a very warm spot in his heart for Didsbury and regrets leaving us. He can rest assured that the majority of the residents of the town regret his departure and wish him all success in his new undertaking and will give him a welcome any time he likes to come back.

The school sports which will be held on Friday afternoon at the school grounds will be held whatever the weather may be as the staff do not wish to break in on the school work on examinations by holding them later. The one tests promise to be keen. J. E. Stauffer, M.P.P., and Mayor Atkins have each given a gold medal for championship events amongst the boys, and Mr. H. W. Chambers has donated a fine camera as a championship prize for the girls' events.

NERVILINESwift Cure For Croup

"Last year two of my children were taken with croup. They coughed some thing dreadfully, and were too sick to eat anything. I applied Nerviline to the throat and chest and gave it internally, also. I also got the children to inhale 'Catarrhazone.' No remedy could have worked more satisfactorily. I can recommend mothers to use Nerviline. It's a fine liniment."

THE BIG BAROMETER OF FAENZA

The big barometer of Faenza, Italy, set up as a memorial to Torricelli, the inventor of the barometer, is thought to be the hugest of all such instruments.

The oil column in this barometer stands normally at about thirty-seven feet, and its fluctuations are read in feet instead of inches, as in the case with ordinary barometers.

At first it was proposed to use water as the liquid, in which case the column would have stood normally at about thirty-two feet, but this plan was abandoned, owing to the ease with which water evaporates. Glycerine was next tried, but the normal height of the column was only twenty-seven feet, and it was thought desirable to have it much higher. Finally olive oil was chosen, and found to be quite satisfactory.

The olive-oil barometer of Faenza will, no doubt, hold the record for size for a long time to come, when someone will employ a still lighter liquid than oil; in which case, of course, the height of the barometric column will be even greater.

It is said that Pascal, the philosopher, was one of those investigators who have made use of unusual materials in the construction of barometers. In a barometer of his devising, mixed wine and water served to fill the column. The first glycerine barometer was set up by Zophar Mills, of New York, and a remarkable water barometer was installed in the tower of St. Jacques, in Paris, in 1890, by M. Jaubert.

"I suffered untold misery even when under treatment from the best doctors for over ten months, and nothing seemed to do me any good or relieve my painful condition. My trouble was Inflammation of Kidneys and Bladder."

"I finally determined to go to the Victoria Hospital, Halifax, for treatment."

"Two days, however, before my intending departure, a neighbor called and happened to have a GIN PILL in his pocket, insisted on my taking it. I did so and six hours after taking it, the results and benefits I derived were simply nothing more nor less than miraculous. Instead of going to the hospital I sent for a box of GIN PILLS with the result that I am a cured man. I recommend GIN PILLS to everyone suffering from Kidney Trouble."

A LITTLE child was seen walking around near "the bearded lady," at one of the side-shows at a country fair. The child being evidently on good terms with the barker, indicated to the onlooker that it was probably related to the bewhiskered female, so she asked the child, "Is the bearded lady your mother?" "No," answered the child, "she is my father."

MRS. ELIZABETH B. GRANNIS, at one of the dinners following the conservation congress in St. Paul, said of marriage: "It is true that some girls, marrying men to reform them, succeed. Some girls, too, fail. The hostess at a tea once said to a beautiful, single woman: 'Are you fond of shorts, Mrs. Blank?' Mrs. Blank smiled. Her sad eyes twinkled a moment. Then she sighed and answered: 'Well, I suppose I ought to be. I married one.'"

SOME few weeks after Nat Willis's recent marriage, Mrs. Willis, formerly La Belle Titcomb, the bare-back rider, was in the kitchen overseeing the breakfast preparations. "Nat," she called to her husband. "No answer." "Nat!" she repeated. "Again no answer. Five times, five no-answers. Entering the dining-room, Mrs. Willis saw her husband at table, absorbedly reading a copy of the New York Journal. "My Gawd!" she sighed. "To think that I married a bookworm!"

AFTER weeks of waiting and longing for the sport, rods, reels, gaff, creel—everything was in readiness for a week's trout-fishing. The young wife, smiling joyously, hurried into the room, extending towards her husband some sticky, speckled papers. "For goodness sake!" he exclaimed, "what on earth are you doing with those old fly-papers?" "I saved them for you from last summer," she answered. "You know you said you always had to buy flies when you went fishing!"

THE wife of a wealthy business man of Chicago was the daughter of a policeman. As they grew rich, both she and her husband concealed the fact as much as possible, for the sake of their social prestige. At a luncheon several society women of high position had been talking about their families. "What was your father's business, Mrs. D?" was finally asked of the business man's wife. Mrs. D. was not disturbed. "My father was in the copper business," she said with cool emphasis.

WILLIAM LOEB, Jr., at a dinner in New York, referred with a smile to the harsher and harsher penalties, even to imprisonment, that are now to be inflicted upon smugglers. "They take it hard, very hard, these smugglers," said Mr. Loeb. "Revolted at the size of their fines, they make me think of George White, the chicken thief. 'What! George shouted reproachfully on hearing his sentence. 'What! Ten dollars for stealin' that chicken? Why, judge, I could 'a' bought a better hen for 50 cents!'"

IN the wee sma' hours of what had been a "big night to-night," a young man arose from a table in one of Boston's eat and drink palaces, and in putting on his coat, dropped a heavy weight on the floor. "Bill," said one of his friends to him, "why the window weight?" "That's no window weight," Bill replied; "that's the weight belonging to our cuckoo clock. See, I carry it with me, and then the wife can't tell what time I get home, for without the weight that fool clock can't crow. Guess I'm foolish like a fox, huh?"

THEY were out together in the early morning and had the golf links to themselves. A curious pair—a portly city merchant new to the game, with an immense idea of his own skill and importance, and his caddy, a typical street gamin, small, but sharp as a needle. The desperate efforts of his employer to make a record drive caused the caddy some amusement, mingled with pity and contempt, yet he held his peace. At last, however, after the novice had plowed up the turf around the ball without moving it, the gamin blurted out:

"Guv'nor, if I'd known you was coming to dig for worms I'd ha' brought a spade. We'd ha' done it quicker."

JUDGE HANGAR was spending a sunny autumn week in Atlantic City, and every morning on one of the piers he used to see a young person whose face looked most familiar. The judge prided himself on his memory for names and faces, and yet somehow, though she always studiously avoided his eye, he stopped and addressed her with courtly politeness.

"Pardon me, miss," he said, "your features are familiar, but, strangely enough, I can not recall the circumstances under which we met. Yet I certainly remember our having met somewhere." "Remember!" cried the young woman, and she rose from among her friends with angry and aggressive air. "Remember, you old sealawag! Well, you ought to remember. It's not a year since you gave me eight months in the pen, and for two cents I'd pitch you over the railing into the water!"

ON his visit to America, Father Vaughan of London was asked:

"Would you give votes to women?"

"I would make no difficulty about giving votes to women," he answered. "But, you understand," he added with twinkling eye, "once you give votes to women the suffragettes will be wanting them also."

A MIGHTY hunter from London recently put up at a quaint little hotel in the Midlands, and left word that he was to be called at five o'clock in the morning. Sharp at that time the next morning came a thundering rap at his door.

"All right! I'll be down in a minute!" called a muffled voice from under the quilt.

"You get up now and sign this receipt!" commanded the voice. "Receipt! What receipt?" demanded a very wide-awake voice, and the bed squeaked loudly as its occupant leaped to the floor.

"Well," grunted the landlord, "I don't intend to have you coming down at eight o'clock declaring that you ain't been called!"

A NATIVE of Cornwall went to London and was gazing into a shop window and obstructing the foot-path. A Cockney stumbled against him and seeing that he was from the country, said to him:

"My man, have you seen a wagon load of monkeys pass down the road?" "No-o-o," Cousin Jack replied slowly; "failed out of the wagon, did 'ee?"

HE was a pale, intellectual looking chap, wearing eyeglasses and unshorn hair, and he visited an athletic instructor not long ago and asked questions until the diplomatic athlete finally became weary.

"If I take boxing and wrestling lessons from you, will it require any particular application?" he asked.

"No," answered the instructor, "nothing but a little arnica—that will come in handy."

A STUDENT at the Western Reserve University suffers from the stigma of obesity. It appears that even professors do not love a fat man. After an particularly successful registration in English III, the professor said to him:

"Alas, Mr. Blank! You are better fed than taught."

"That's right, professor," sighed the youth, subsiding heavily. "You teach me, while I feed myself."

The Horseman

There is no denying the fact that one of the drawbacks to harness horse racing is the scoring—that is, repeated scoring before the races are actually on, and although this objectionable feature has been in existence as long as harness horse racing has been conducted, and that means for nearly a century, no improvement has been made in the system during all these years. The one noted horseman and driver, Barney Demarest, who was connected with racing for many years, is blossoming out as a starting judge this year, and announces that he intends starting his fields fifty feet from the wire, but, of course, the time will be taken from the judges' stand. He states that on account of being nearer the horses, it will make it possible to have greater control over the drivers, and in that way false breaks will be very few.

The idea is a good one, but it is not new. It was used at Dufferin Park, in Toronto, two years ago, with successful results. The only difference between the plan proposed by Demarest and that seen two years ago in Toronto is that in the latter instance the starter remained in the judges' stand at the wire and had an assistant who handled the horses up the track, while Demarest would dispense with the assistant.

It was while acting in the capacity of assistant starter at Dufferin Park that the local horseman, Charles Phair, conceived the idea of using a "gate," such as used on the tracks where running races are conducted, making the start from a reasonable distance from the actual point where the race would begin or from where the time would be taken, but beyond admitting this style of starting would be an improvement the local promoters of harness horse racing paid little attention to it. Mr. Phair's idea would be an improvement on that of Demarest, inasmuch as the horses could be got in line easier, as they could not get by the barrier once it was in place, until the starter was willing, and then every competitor would have an equal chance.

People do not go to race meeting to witness protracted scoring, but to see the horses in real contests, and, again, continuous scoring often ruins the chances of a good horse's winning, for it is the good horses that invariably score down to the wire when called upon, while bad actors often refuse to score, which reserves their strength to a certain extent. Most starting judges make the mistake of compelling good acting horses to score to suit the bad actors, instead of giving the latter a reasonable chance to score with willing horses, and then if they do not act properly, give the word. Fault, of course, is found with this method by the owners and backers of bad acting horses, but this would carry but little weight, as the general public are not slow to discriminate between right and wrong on the race track.

The Europeans educate their horses to race from a standing start, which dispenses with all scoring, and this is most pleasing to the spectators and leaves the horses in better physical condition for their contests. There is no reason why horses should not be started on our tracks from a standing position, but it does not follow that such a start must be made at the wire. Mr. Phair's plan of using the starting gate would necessitate the horses being flat-footed, as the saying is, when the barrier sprung up. There are commendable features enough about the "gate" system to give it a trial at harness horse meetings. It could not possibly be any worse than the present plan of scoring. Some difficulty would be experienced in getting all the starters in a race to move at the same time, and those that are slow to get in motion would have to be educated just the same as on the running tracks. Radical changes in the system of harness horse racing are required to keep up with the times and meet the wishes of those who pay their money at the gate and thereby make racing possible, and a branch of the sport needs reforming any more than the starting; but a starting judge cannot bring about the changes necessary for the welfare of the sport without the co-operation of the racing associations, and the latter are usually loth to make any change in the showman system, notwithstanding nearly all of them are aware that changes are necessary to revive interest in the game.

Christopher J. Fitzgerald, the well known Canadian who has officiated in every capacity from clerk of the scale to presiding judge on the big track around New York, has decided to retire from the game and devote his entire time to his business enterprises, of which he has several. He is largely interested in a shoe manufacturing concern in New Jersey, and also another in his home town, London, Ont.

WHAT EVERY WOMAN

CURE FOR ALL ACHES AND PAINS

Mrs. Vaillancourt Adds Her Experience to the Great Mass of Proof That Dodd's Kidney Pills are Woman's Best Friend

Laford, Alberta.—(Special).—That the women of the West are finding in Dodd's Kidney Pills a sure relief from those aches and pains that only women know is becoming more evident every day, and Mrs. Agnes Vaillancourt of this place gladly gives her experience as an addition to the mass of proof that is being piled up.

"For three years I suffered intensely with Kidney Disease," Mrs. Vaillancourt states. "I had pain everywhere. I only used six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and I am completely cured of all my aches and pains. I am in perfect health to-day."

Woman's health depends on her Kidneys. If they are not in perfect order the impurities are not strained out of her blood and she cannot be healthy. She feels it in every part of her body and the result is that she is weary and worn and full of aches and pains. What every woman should know is that there is sure relief and perfect health for her if she uses Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Nose Colds Cured Quickly

Dear Sirs.—I was a chronic sufferer from continuous colds in the throat and nose, and for many years have constantly had Catarrh. I was recommended to try Catarrhazone, and find that by using the inhaler on the first touch of a cold or La Grippe I am able to stay it a few hours. I have been able to breathe through my nose freely since using Catarrhazone; in fact I am completely cured. (Signed) Elwood S. Lee, Wydenham, Ont.

All dealers sell Catarrhazone, in 25c, 50c and $1.00 sizes. Refuse a substitute.

by his acquaintances, has had an honored career in connection with racing, and the secret of his success lies in the fact that he is a thorough horseman, is possessed of keen judgment, and was never a "mixer."

In the halcyon days of racing he was the starter for the Jockey Club at all the "big" meetings, and for many years at New Orleans, and his work in that capacity was always of superior merit. Last year he was appointed presiding judge by the New York Jockey Club for the reason that he was the one man that stood out pre-eminently for the position, and his services were greatly appreciated.

At a recent meeting of the stewards of the Jockey Club, when notice of his resignation was given, he spoke as follows:

"I leave the turf with regret. For nearly twenty years I have acted as starter, patrol judge, steward, clerk of the scales, and presiding judge. Racing is a fine sport, and if at any time I can be of service to it, I shall only be too glad to give it a helping hand. It has been harassed—nay, persecuted—without mercy, but I'm certain it will ultimately recover from the blows that have been dealt it."

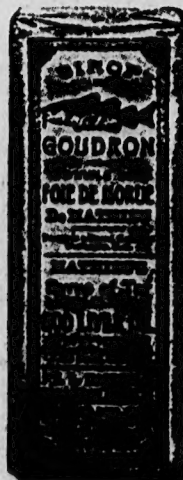

Besides attending to his duties in connection with racing, Chris found time to write a weekly story or two for the New York Sun, and they were all cleverly written, as he is possessed of a fund of rare lore, and knows how to put it in a form that is most entertaining. His weekly story in the Sun is so good that it is "scalped" by hundreds of United States and Canadian papers, and it will be a relief to many a turf "editor" to know that the clever turfman will continue his stories in the Sun.

Christopher J. Fitzgerald is the son of Dr. G. J. Fitzgerald, a retired veterinary surgeon of London, Ont., and his fondness for horses is probably hereditary, as the elder has for many years been prominent in the horse industry of Canada, and at the present time owns the only living son of the great Electioneer—Beautiful Belle, in Bel-sire, 2:18, a brown stallion of superb quality.

It was only last fall that the writer had the pleasure of meeting Chris at the Western Fair in London, and enjoyed a prolonged visit with him, inspecting the big exhibit of live stock on the grounds. His knowledge of the different breeds of animals is unbounded; in fact, I have never met a man so well posted on such matters, and he is just as familiar with harness horses and harness horse rules of racing as with the thoroughbreds. No trotting association would go wrong in placing him in the stand as presiding judge, for he is capable of filling such a position in a faultless manner. The unfortunate thing is, there are not enough Chris Fitzgeralds, otherwise the sport of racing in general would be better off.

Glue which will withstand damp, should be made with linseed oil instead of water. This is only useful for wood-work.

Time tries all things, and as Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup has stood the test of years it now ranks as a leading specific in the treatment of all ailments of the throat and lungs. It will soften and subdue the most stubborn cough by relieving the irritation, and restore the affected organs to healthy conditions. Use will show its value. Try it and be convinced of its efficacy.

The Easy Laxative

In justice to yourself you should try Rexall Orderlies, — your money back if you don't like them. They are a candy confection that really do give easy relief from constipation.

Good health is largely dependent upon the bowels. When they become sluggish the waste material that is thrown off by the system accumulates. This condition generates poisons which circulate throughout the body, tending to create coated tongue, bad breath, headache, dull brain action, nervousness, biliousness and other annoyances.

Avoid harsh cathartics and physics. They give but temporary relief. They often aggravate the real trouble. They are particularly bad for children, delicate or aged persons.

Rexall Orderlies

Come in tablet form, taste just like candy and are noted for their easy, soothing action upon the bowels. They don't purge, gripe, cause nausea, looseness, nor the inconveniences attendant upon the use of purgatives. Their action is so pleasant that the taking of Rexall Orderlies almost becomes a desire instead of a duty.

Children like Rexall Orderlies. They are ideal for aged or delicate persons as well as for the most robust. They act toward relieving constipation, and also to overcome its cause and to make unnecessary the frequent use of laxatives. They serve to tone and strengthen the nerves and muscles of the bowels and associated organs or glands.

Make Us Prove It

We guarantee to refund every penny paid us for Rexall Orderlies if they do not give entire satisfaction. We ask no promises and we in no way obligate you. Your mere word is sufficient for us to promptly and cheerfully refund the money.

Doesn't that prove that Rexall Orderlies must be right? You must know we would not dare make such a promise unless we were positively certain that Rexall Orderlies will do all we claim for them. There is no money risk attached to a trial of Rexall Orderlies, and in justice to yourself, you should not hesitate to test them.

Rexall Orderlies come in convenient vest-pocket size tin boxes, 12 tablets, 10c; 36 tablets, 25c; 80 tablets, 50c.

CAUTION: Please bear in mind that Rexall Orderlies are not sold by all druggists. You can buy Rexall Orderlies only at the Rexall Stores. You can buy Rexall Orderlies in this community only at our store:

Oddfellows Attend Divine Service

On Sunday evening the local lodge of the I.O.O.F. turned out in force to attend divine services in the Presbyterian church in honor of the 94th anniversary of the institution of the Order. The members assembled at the lodge rooms at 7 o'clock and headed by Conductor J. Sinclair marched to the church.

Rev. D. H. Marshall preached a splendid sermon on "Friendship, Love and Truth," and quoted instances of where the Order had been of great help to its members in their time of trouble and emphasized the fact that members of these societies should not only be a help to their brother members but also to humanity in general.

The choir also rendered an anthem suitable to the occasion.

After the services the lodge marched back to the lodge rooms and dispersed.

WHAT do you think, the provincial government, and incidentally the member who represents the Didsbury constituency, does not think that the public of Didsbury are entitled to any knowledge of matters relating to the transfer or renewal of licenses for this district according to the way they are conducting the advertising of these affairs. The weekly papers to the north and south of us contained about two columns of advertising matter relating to the above last week but this district was slighted in so far as informing the public in respect to these licenses regarding the hotels in the district was concerned. We claim, outside of any personal consideration, that the people of this district, and especially those who are interested in the Temperance and Moral Reform League, are as vitally interested in the matter of hotel regulations as are any people in the province, the same regarding provincial regulations controlling pool rooms which were published in these same papers at the same time as the license renewals. Evidently this town and district is to be slighted the same as it was last year when the same thing happened for several months.

Meeting to Hold Celebration

The meeting called on Thursday night last in the Fire Hall for the purpose of holding a celebration on May 24th, Empire Day, in aid of the Didsbury Citizens Band was not very well attended, owing no doubt to the fact that there were several other meetings being held on the same evening. Those present decided that it would be better to postpone the meeting until the Friday evening following, which was done.

On Friday evening there was a splendid turn-out of citizens and bandmen, the Fire Hall being filled, and it was decided that May 24th should be celebrated in a fitting manner and incidentally to raise a fund to assist the Citizens Band financially for the season.

The following officers and committees were selected to carry out the celebration, and as there is a large number of those who were on last year's committees placed on the committees for this year, the public can rest assured that the celebration will be as good and perhaps better than last year.

H. E. Osmond was elected chairman and A. Z. Weber Sec. Treas. of the celebration committee. The executive committee was elected as follows: H. C. Forrest, chairman; H. Gathercole, E. G. Grant, H. W. Chambers, F. Moyle, J. Sinclair, J. A. Findlay, M. Ryckman, L. J. Kalbfleisch and J. K. Good.

Finance—H. W. Chambers, J. A. Findlay, with power to add to their committee.

Advertising—H. E. Osmond, J. R. Good.

Horse Racing—H. C. Forrest, M. Ryckman, J. Sinclair, J. A. Findlay, T. W. Cuncannon.

Athletics—L. J. Kalbfleisch, H. W. Chambers, E. G. Grant, H. Gathercole, A. Jury.

School—E. G. Grant, L. C. Coffey, Principal Reid, H. E. Osmond, Miss E. Sexsmith, Miss McMurchy.

Music—H. Gathercole.
Grounds—L. J. Kalbfleisch, F. Moyle, D. Mackie, Alf. Smith, R. W. Cole.

First name on each committee to be chairman of that committee.

It is to be hoped that the citizens of Didsbury will all join in and help to make this celebration a success from every point, both financially to the band as well as giving the people of the district a good time once in a year. A good programme of sports, which will include horse races, will be issued in a few days.

The meeting then adjourned to meet again at the call of the President.

Another meeting was held on Friday night to complete organization. T. Stark gave a report on the League meeting held at Carstairs.

The following committee was then elected to look after grounds: Messrs. F. Moyle, J. Findlay, T. Stark and W. Scheidt.

Sure Cure for Croup

"Last year two of my children were taken with croup. They coughed something dreadfully, and were too sick to eat anything. I applied Nerviline to the throat and chest and gave it internally, also. A BIRD'S ACADEMY

In a little house in London appears the interesting sign, "Academy for Birds," and from the open windows in summer comes a most amazing volume of bird-song. The "professor" is not at all particular as to the breed or value of the pupils offered. Any song bird is eligible; terms, 2s. 6d. (sixty-two cents) for the course. The "academy" guarantees that each pupil shall leave the establishment fully proficient to render three airs without omission and in correct time.

The method of instruction is very simple, and is said to be remarkably successful. There are three rooms, in each of which is a phonograph which plays a single air. A new bird has his cage hung in room No. 1 until he has learned to sing correctly the constantly repeated air and is then transferred to the second and in time to the third room.

One of the motorists called to the room: "Can't you get them past? We've stopped the car."
To their surprise the man responded: "Oh, it ain't the motor, sir. If you gentlemen will only get out and hide behind the hedge it'll be all right."

Storyettes

One day a lady with a passion for house-decorating was careless enough to drink a glass of red ink, mistaking it for claret. A doctor was summoned. "My dear madam," he remarked, when the facts had been placed before him, "there's such a thing as pushing this rage for decorated interiors too far!"

"Cockney Humor" was the subject of a lecture by Mr. Pett Ridge in Huddersfield. He told a story about a bus conductor who stumbled twice over the foot of a small boy.

Looking back at the mother, the conductor said:

"Some people seem to have very awkward children."

"Yes," said the mother; "I was just thinking your mother had one."

Three little girls were playing. The mother of one came into the room and engaged the children in conversation. "Marian, what are you going to be when you grow up?" she asked. "I am going to be a famous singer," she replied. "And you, Susie, what are you going to be?" "Oh, I am going to write stories when I grow up," she answered. "And what is Marjorie to be?" continued the mother. Marjorie, aged 5, thought seriously a moment and then said: "Well, I am not sure, but I think I'll be a widow."

Romeo had taken the poison, and Juliet was staggering about the stage, wailing and wringing her hands.

"Oh, cruel poison!" she cried. Kneeling distractedly beside her lover she raised his head and kissed his lips.

The local doctor's assistant, carried away in his excitement, sprang wildly to his feet, and struggled towards an exit, shouting:

"That's right, Juliet. You keep his head up and I'll fetch the stomach pump!"

A mother-in-law had stayed so often with her daughter as to cause a quarrel with the husband.

One day she found her daughter weeping in the drawing room.

"What's the matter? Gracious me, don't say that George has left you!" she exclaimed.

"He has," replied the young wife, tearfully.

"Then there's a woman in the house?" matter asked, her eyes lighting up expectantly.

"Yes."

"Who is it?"

"You."

"Hot in Brazil?" said the young man who had returned from a trip to South America. "Well, I should say so. Do you know, for days at a time we couldn't take our dinner sista on account of the peculiar noises!"

"What noises?" asked the blonde stenographer, innocently.

"Why, the coffee popping on the trees. You see, the sun was so hot the grains just roasted before they were picked."

The old traveller yawned.

"Rather warm down there, huh," he rejoined, laconically, "but when I was down there you couldn't sleep at night. Every once in a while there would sound the most extraordinary crackling noise that ever fell upon the human ear."

"What were the sounds, Mr. Kings?"

And Mr. Kings yawned again and replied: "The rubber trees stretching themselves."

Albert T. Reid and Harvey Parsons, two well-known Kansas artists, are very good friends. Reid was one of Parsons' teachers.

Recently Reid drew a handsome water color picture depicting a very pretty girl dressed in a milkmaid's costume. She had one arm thrown lovingly about the neck of a big, fine Holstein cow—the kind they raise in Kansas. In the other hand she carried a milking stool. The girl and the cow were wandering through a field of daisies. It is a good piece of work and was accepted readily and gladly by the publishers who ordered it.

Just about the time Reid had finished Parsons wandered into the studio.

"What are you working on?" asked Parsons. Reid pointed to an easel on which stood the picture of the girl and the cow.

Parsons looked it over for some time, and blowing out a big wreath of pipe smoke, asked:

"What is that girl going to do?"

"Going to do?" ejaculated Reid.

"Why, milk the cow, of course."

"What is she doing with her arm around the cow's neck?" asked Parsons.

"Leading the animal to the lot," replied Reid, mixing some paint.

"Well, where is the milk pail?" demanded Parsons.

"She hasn't any milk pail," replied Reid.

"H'm," replied Parsons. "Then maybe she isn't going to milk the cow."

"Well, maybe she isn't," assented Reid.

"Well, if she isn't," persisted Parsons, blowing another puff of smoke, "what is the girl going to do with that milk stool?"

"Oh," snorted Reid, "she is going to hit the damned cow over the head with it."

The desultory mode of life I was following gave me very little chance to attend to the Catarrh condition, and at last I became a victim to Chronic Catarrh. I bought a large package of Catarrhose, used it as per directions, and have never been bothered since. Upon retirement from office he was at once much sought after by those charged with crime. The first two cases which he defended resulted in conviction, much to his chagrin. An old negro who had watched his prosecution in admiring wonder and looked on with equal interest when he conducted the defense, accosted him just after his defeat and said: "Mars, Earle, you sho is a wonder. No matter which side you's on they go to the pen just the same."

The Horseman

T. H. Hassard the well-known importer and dealer in all classes of horses with headquarters at Markham, Ont., recently bought the standard bred stallion Prince Ideal, 38206, from Crow and Murray, of Toronto, these horsemen having purchased the horse at the Fasig-Tipton Company's November sale at Madison Square Garden, New York, last year with the intention of converting him into a high stepper; but on account of his excellent blood lines, Prince Ideal was considered of too much value to be lost to the breeding colony of horses.

Prince Ideal is a grand specimen of his breed. He is a beautiful chestnut in color, and his conformation, together with his legs and feet are faultless, with the names of famous horses, and his name would now be recorded among the list of extremely fast trotters had the late proprietor of the Village Farm at East Aurora, N.Y., where he was bred and owned during his early days, allowed him to be raced. As it was, the Canadian trainer, Ben White, who was in charge of the Village Farm when Prince Ideal was a 3-year old in (1904) worked him a public trial in 2:15 1-2, last half in 1:06, and last quarter in 32 seconds. White stated at the time that he could show a mile in 2:12, but the late Harry Hamlin, who was the owner, was of the opinion that the horse had done well enough and that he had demonstrated he was a high-class young stallion and therefore had him shipped from the Syracuse track back to the farm. Mr. Hamlin's death caused the Village Farm horses to be sold by auction, and it was at this sale that Knox and Good, the proprietors of the Ideal Stock Farm, paid $10,500 for Prince Ideal. The horse's new owners placed him in the stud at their noted breeding establishment and there are now many trotters by him at the farm.

Prince Ideal, by Beau Ideal 2:15 1/2, son of Dare Devil 2:09—Nettie King, 2:20 1/4 (dam of The Abbott, 2:03 1/4 trotting, at 3 years etc.) by Mambrino King—Nettie Murphy by Hamlin Patcher. Dare Devil was also a son of Mambrino King, his dam being Mercedes, by Chimes, the famous sire of Extreme Speed.

Future Princess the dam of Prince Ideal was an own sister to Princess Royal, (2) 2:20, being the noted Chimes and out of Estabella, (dam of Heirat-Law) 2:05 1/2, sire of Minor Heir, 1:58 1/2, etc.) by Alcantara—Annabel, by George Wilkes. Thus it will be seen that it would be difficult to improve upon the breeding of Prince Ideal, and when it is taken into consideration that he is considered the most perfect trotter ever produced at Village Farm, his value to the breeding interests of this country may be easily understood.

As a show horse, Prince Ideal has been highly successful. He has been a repeated winner in the show ring as was his sire, The Beau Ideal, his grand-sire, Dare Devil, and his great grand-sire, Mambrino King. The latter it will be remembered, was considered the handsomest horse in the world.

Mr. Hassard is to be congratulated on owning a stallion like Prince Ideal and the owners of light harness mares in Ontario are fortunate that this famous horse will be exhibited at the forthcoming Horse Show which begins April 25th in Toronto.

Would a stallion license law be beneficial to the horse breeding interests of Canada? This is a question that has often been asked and one that invariably answered in the affirmative. Of course, each province has the power to regulate such matters but any legislation bearing upon the subject which would benefit one province would in a like manner benefit all provinces.

In the province of Ontario, especially, the horse industry has developed to such an extent that there are enough really good stallions distributed throughout the province to meet the requirements of all owners of mares and many of the stallions stand at very moderate fees so that even the poorest owner cannot complain about the excessive service fees.

The time has not far passed when the ordinary cross-roads stallion of indifferent breeding would receive a liberal patronage in the stud season for the simple reason that their owners could easily mislead the innocent owners of a mare, the latter as a rule not being familiar with the pedigrees, but as time goes on these owners are becoming more enlightened, thanks to the increasing circulation of the turf papers and it is now a question whether they require the protection of a stallion license law. Like the Indians, the mongrel stallion is rapidly becoming extinct and it will not be long before an unregistered stallion will be conspicuous by his rarity.

However, in order to guard against unsound stallions standing for mares, a license law, by the terms of which every stallion would have to pass a thorough examination as to soundness, would be a good thing.

SUFFERED SINCE HER CHILDHOOD

BUT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS MADE MRS. LAPRAIRIE A NEW WOMAN

Nipissing Lady gives an experience that should prove of immense value to the suffering women of Canada.

Laprairieville, Nipissing District, Ont. (Special).—After suffering from various forms of kidney illness since she was a child, Mrs. Laprairie is a well woman and once more it has been proved that no case of Kidney Trouble is too severe or of too long standing for Dodd's Kidney Pills to cure.

Interviewed regarding her cure, Mrs. Laprairie said:

"Since I was twelve years of age I have suffered from Kidney disease. I was always tired. My back would ache, and I always had a sharp pain in the top part of my head. My heart also troubled me."

"Hearing of Dodd's Kidney Pills, I gave them a trial, and now I feel like a new woman."

Thousands of Canadian men and women are feeling just as Mrs. Laprairie does—as if life had started all over for them—just because they have cured their kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills. For the kidneys are the mainspring of life. If they are clogged or out of order the whole body is wrong. Dodd's Kidney Pills always put the kidneys in good working order.

Women With Weakness

For all weaknesses from which girls and women suffer, no surer remedy exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They maintain that bracing health every woman so earnestly desires; they uproot disease, and bring strength that lasts till old age.

"No medicine could be more beneficial than Dr. Hamilton's Pills," writes Mrs. Mary E. Ayrton of Victoria. "I have been strengthened, my digestion is better, I have improved in color and feel considerably better since using Dr. Hamilton's Pills." Sold everywhere, 25c. per box or five boxes for one dollar.

The Futurities that are being promoted by the Canadian Standard-bred Record Association should receive the most liberal support of everyone interested in Canadian harness horses for the reason that by its terms a 3-year old trotter or pacer will have an earning capacity in 1914.

The conditions of the Futurities call for the nomination of mares mated during the season of 1911, and by small payments at different times, the total amount of which will amount to less than the regulation five per cent, usually demanded of all starters in a race, the offspring of nominated mares are eligible to start in the races which will be held in 1914. Provision has been made for cases where a nominated mare proves to be without foal, or if a foal of a nominated mare should die, by which another mare may be substituted by the payment of a small amount extra. The nominating fee is but two dollars, which must be made by May 1st this year, but in cases where a mare has not been nominated by that date, the nomination may be made any time before December 31st, upon payment of four dollars. The races, which will be for 3-year-old trotters and 3-year-old pacers, will each have a guaranteed value of $1,000, and will be decided at the Canadian National Exhibition during the Fair of 1914.

No owner of a brood mare should neglect supporting this Futurity. It is the first of the kind that has been promoted in Ontario in years. It will give an impetus to the harness horse and increase their value in the selling market for young animals with Stake engagements find a ready sale, where those with no engagements are not sought after by buyers, who are on the lookout for racing material.

Horsemen not already in possession of descriptive circulars and entry blanks for the Futurities should at once apply to P. W. Rogers, Exhibition Office, Toronto, and they will be forwarded at once.

The Standard-bred Record Association, the promoters of the Futurities, are doing a good work in connection with the harness horse interests of Canada, and they demonstrate their activity by guaranteeing the full amount of each purse.

BRITISH TARGET PRACTICE

Although the conditions of target practice have been made more difficult for the gunner, the number of hits has increased in the British navy. The target, towed at an unknown speed, is 30 feet high by 90 feet long, the latter dimension being less than one-fifth the length of a modern battleship. During 1910, the 10 and 12-inch guns averaged 9.7 hits per minute against 0.4 four years ago. The 6.2-inch guns for the whole fleet averaged 2.01 hits; the 7.5-inch guns made 2.61 hits, as against 1.58 made by this gun four years ago.

FASHIONS AND FANCIES

Serge is again this season the favored fabric for the tailored costume, in either the fine French twill or herring-bone effects. Checked and striped worsteds are also greatly in demand, and there is a wide range of mixtures in grays and tans, and the smart shepherd's plaids from which to make a selection.

Blue is obliged to share honors with black and white combinations for first place in the spring color curriculum. Black and white checks and stripes are very prominent and are oftenest seen with a touch of color introduced into the collar of the suit, or into the trimming of the waist when the lighter weight black and white fabric is used for a frock. Cerise is especially striking when used in this way. Navy blue, old blue and king's blue are the most desirable shades in the heavier suitings. Next in popularity are tan, snuff brown, leaf green, violet and silver grey.

Although the tailored and semi-tailored costume will be worn to a greater extent than ever this season, the long coat will be a very necessary garment in every woman's wardrobe to wear with silk and lingerie gowns. Just as last year serge coats will take first place, which is not surprising, because this material seems to adapt itself to all occasions. Beside serge, there are coats in rough tweeds, chevrons, and homespun. For dressy occasions the coat may be of black satin made in a directoire fashion, with pekiné revers of black and white and particularly smart are the white serge coats with the black hairline stripe.

Self trimmings feature strongly in these separate coats. Striped material used on the cross and bias in belts, bands, collars and cuffs is very effective especially when set off by handsome buttons. Braid too finds a liberal use as a coat trimming.

The same straight lines obtain in gowns for spring and summer wear. High waistline, peasant bodice, straight, narrow skirts, these are the salient features. The kimono sleeve retains its vogue, and is much used both in linen and lingerie frocks, though for tubbing purposes it is an abomination, and it is not as successful in linen as in softer materials.

In the sheer cotton stuffs skirts are usually slightly full or set into the band with half-inch band tucks, which are run down for a short distance and merely pressed for the rest of the length.

The dimities, organizes, and other summer stuffs which have a hint of crispness must be very carefully handled in this day of straight, narrow silhouettes, but the cotton voiles, voiles, cotton marquisettes, cotton crepes, batistes, mulls and undressed linens are easily made to subscribe to the rules.

Sheer materials, light weight and clinging, these with soft silks are the favorite dress fabrics. Voile has come back to a greater popularity than it has ever known, and cotton voiles are on the highest pinnacle of fashion as materials for summer frocks, white and the delicate pale blues, greens, and pinks being the chosen colors. Frocks of white and colored voile are charming with trimmings of pretty laces, and white dresses with hems and knee deep skirt bands of satin or surah silk are pleasing novelties. Voile frocks with embroideries in bead trimmings are extremely pretty.

Foulard gowns will also be much worn. The new foulards are ornamented with small patterns such as pin-spots, small squares, checks, or stripes; while others show small floral sprays in antique colorings. Dresses of this material are shown with deep hem of plain satin, also veiled with ninon and marquisette. The surplice and the fichu stripe for the waist is carried out in every sort of gown, from the plain line or embroidered one to the veiled evening gown. The point or crossing in either case, is arranged well toward the belt, which allows an opportunity for considerable elaboration in front trimming. Trimming bands are being applied to various pointed effects, since the point is the keynote of all trimming motifs this season.

The bolero is steadily coming into favor, and many lingerie gowns are trimmed to give this effect. Bias folds in self tones are also much used on plain colored cotton frocks. A touch of color is introduced in almost all white dresses, either by embroidery or in the trimming used.

Blouses and shirt waists without which no woman's wardrobe is complete are to be had in an infinite variety.

The tailored models show no marked change in style. They are made usually with plaits down the front and back, and sometimes with broad plaits over the shoulders. Invariably they have long sleeves with the straight cut.

Skirt of dainty fine lawn in white and plain colors, white with colored stripes and polka dots and coin spots and colored weaves with white designs are among the novelty lines.

The Dutch neck and three-quarter sleeves will be much worn this summer. Hand-embroideries and clever imitations of hand work embellish many of the best of the new designs in lingerie blouses, and lace of every kind is much used, often several kinds being used on one waist. Cluny is one of the most popular. Heavy trimmings with sheer materials seem to be the rule this year. Lawn and batiste divide favor with cotton voile and marquisette. Many of the most elaborate waists of these materials embroidered in beads. Braiding is also a popular mode of trimming.

The well-gowned woman of to-day recognizes the importance of being corseted in accordance with the style of costume to be worn, and several distinctly different models are required to give the proper lines to the garments now in vogue.

First of all there is the tailored style with long lines, plain material, simply trimmed, and with pliable boning. This is either in medium high bust or low style with well-boned brassiere.

The stout woman needs a model well boned, and sufficiently long below the waist to keep the hips in subjection, but allow perfect freedom and comfort to the upper part of the figure.

The corset for afternoon wear is made to give as much suppleness to the figure as possible and give the uncorseted appearance to some extent. Soft, pliable materials, few bones, and low bust effects complemented with a brassiere carefully chosen in lines suited to the figure are most satisfactory.

The model to be worn with the evening dress is chosen in a supple fabric with a deep cut-out back, which conforms in line to the extremely low-cut back, section of the gown in favor this season. Brassieres of real lace all-over embroidery, tulle and ribbon are shown in endless variety for evening wear, and can be produced in any delicate history of corset construction; there has been no period when so much interest has been evidenced in fancy fabrics. Usually their use has been confined practically to experienced models, and they have appeared only in small quantities in cheaper numbers. This season, however, many new materials have been brought out, probably due to the fact that the soft effects require pliable cloth.

Empire styles prevail in the newest lingerie, sometimes in the cut of the garment and is sometimes produced by the arrangement of the heading and inset of the lace motifs. Muslins, batistes, cambrics and crepes are the materials most used in lingerie this season, and while embroideries are greatly used, the elusy and val laces and medallions are also profusely employed.

Petticoats are very scant, with the preference, in the silk ones, for messalines and the soft finish taffetas. Persian and Oriental colorings in the flounces are considered very smart, while black and white effects bid fair to prove as popular in petticoats as they are in outer garments.

Petticoats, combinations and even chemises must conform to the straight narrow lines of outer skirts and when frills are used at all they must be soft enough to crush into limpsiness under even the flimsy outer fabric. Another garment especially adapted for wear under the narrow skirts is a combination garment consisting of corset cover and knicker drawers, the latter tied in closely at the knee with ribbons, giving a trim effect.

Any woman can have dainty undergarments if she is willing to do the work herself in her leisure hours.

The skirts clear the ground by at least three inches, and are shown in a variety of conceptions, all, however, maintaining carefully the straight narrow lines. Many skirts are finished at the top with an inside belt that lifts them a couple of inches above the normal waistline. This arrangement obviates the use of the separate belt and gives more graceful figure lines. Perhaps one of the best designs is the simple four-gore skirt, though side by side with it hang more complicated designs combining plain gores and pleated sections and even attached lower sections, portions having the slightest suggestion of a flare at the side.

THE HEALTH OF NATIONS

Civilization, as though to compensate mankind for all the troubles inflicted, has added, or, rather, caused to be added, many years to his life in the land. The one country shining in exception is India, which only serves to prove that the greatest progress has been made in the countries where medical science is most esteemed.

Readable as one of the latest novels is that portion of the report of the National Conservation Commission, issued by the United States government, written by Professor Irving Fisher, instructor in political economy in Yale University, which deals with the deep problem of national vitality. As a nation, he finds, with a remarkable array of facts and statistics to interestingly substantiate his findings, that Americans have a stronger grip on life than ever, despite the strain under which they labor. In Massachusetts in four decades, fourteen years have been added to the lives of Bay State people.

Prussia, home of applied progressive medical science, leads all nations in gained vitality, her people having gained twenty-five years on Father Time—that is, they die that much later in life than did their forefathers.

That vast waste of life, consequently of force and production, occurs, for fifty-two out of every hundred deaths need not have taken place had proper preventive measures been taken in time, is the report of eminent physicians attached to Professor Fisher's article. Another stretch may be added to life when the so-called "incurable" diseases of today are brought under subjugation by medical skill, and the disease of old age itself may be pushed back a number of years. Work is urged, care must be exercised for the human machine, and at the age of eighty a man should still be strong physically and young mentally.

Sweden would appear to be an ideal country in which to be born with a view to obtaining middle age, no matter what arguments be advanced for this happy state of affairs. Prussia follows closely. In India, where the average life numbers twenty years, women live longer than men.

Considering the matter from a cold-blooded basis of dollars and cents, deaths and sickness which experts claim could have been prevented, yearly cause a loss in money to the United States of nearly three billion dollars, and with better medical methods and more careful personal habits an enormous saving not merely in money, but in time and energy, could be effected.

Of course it is not particularly pleasing to the poor man to be told that his chances of longevity are considerably less than those of the rich, but the report shows such to be the case. Quoting Professor Fisher:

"That a well-to-do class, properly fed and clothed and with opportunity for leisure, will be less susceptible to disease and death than a poverty-stricken class, ill-fed and overworked, has been repeatedly shown by statistics. News-holme has stated, for example, that in Glasgow the death rate among tenants of large houses is much lower than among the tenants of smaller dwellings."

Naturally, in view of what has been accomplished, some surprise may be occasioned when it is said though the child born today has a much better chance of reaching the age of sixty than did his great-grandfather, his chances are not much better after that age, largely due to the fact that certain diseases have increased in modern times. Forces which work to this disadvantage are diabetes, heart disease, and Bright's disease, the death rate from which has nearly doubled in the last thirty years. Discovery that most diseases can be prevented has resulted in the largely reduced general death rate. Tuberculosis has been curbed slightly, and the claim is advanced that under ideal conditions ninety per cent. of the cases would not occur.

How illness affects economies is best understood by this extract from the report:

"It is estimated that there are half a million persons constantly suffering from tuberculosis in this country. It is safe to say that half of these can not work, while the other half can do but half a well person's labor."

Of necessity people must keep well if the national health is to continue at a high standard; hence, the thing to do is to prevent sickness and accidents. Professor Fisher estimates that fifty per cent. of the population is impaired to the extent of ten per cent. of its real working power. Over-fatigue leads to ailments of many kinds—even to the most deadly. Says Professor Fisher:

"The present working day is a striking example of the failure to conserve national vitality. In order to keep power unimpaired, the working day should be physiological, that is, it should be such as would enable the average individual to completely recuperate over night. Otherwise, instead of a simple daily cycle, there is a progressive deterioration. A reduction in the length of the working day would be the chief means of improving the vitality of workmen as well as the worth of life to them."

What would life be if everybody were always well? It is too much to expect such a condition soon, but the next generation should see a marvelous improvement in health conditions, with the dangerous diseases of today reduced to the minimum of danger and the minor ailments practically unknown. This is not too much to expect, after reading Professor Fisher's careful report, and the fact that fourteen years have been added to the span of life in Massachusetts in such a short

In Three Accidents

It would seem that Zam-Buk, the famous healing balm we hear so highly spoken of everywhere, is particularly useful in the family circle. A report sent by Mrs. E. Davey, 786 Ellice ave., Winnipeg, will illustrate this. She says: "My little boy, of three, while playing fell from a high verandah to the ground, cutting his forehead badly. Instead of calling a doctor who would undoubtedly have put in a number of stitches, I bathed the wound well, and applied Zam-Buk. The little fellow, although suffering keenly, soon had relief from his pain. In the course of three weeks, by applying Zam-Buk daily, the wound was nicely healed."

"Since then I have also used Zam-Buk for a boil which came on my cheek, and which proved very painful and looked unsightly. Zam-Buk soon drew the boil to a head and it then quickly banished it."

"Another time my baby was scalded on her left thigh and calf of leg with boiling water. Directly it was done I thought to use Zam-Buk and spreading some on lint I wrapped up the baby's limb. Next morning she rested much easier and I applied a fresh bandage with Zam-Buk. I kept this treatment up daily, and was rewarded by seeing a great improvement each time I dressed the wound. In a very short space of time the scalds were all nicely healed."

"I cannot recommend this wonderful healing preparation too highly for family use, and I have such great faith in its healing powers that my house is never without a box."

For all skin injuries and diseases, piles, eczema, salt rheum and face sores, Zam-Buk is absolutely unequalled. 50c. box all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Try Zam-Buk Soap too! Only 25c. tablet.

"I thought I would write you a few lines to let you know how thankful I feel for the relief they gave me, and would advise all sufferers from Rheumatism to get Gin Pills."

time is only further proof that though Americans may be running at high speed, they are not in any danger of wearing out.

THE MODERN VIEW OF LIFE

Children are regarded as "encumbrances," first to their parents and afterwards to society and themselves. The place is too strait for them. Undoubtedly this estimate of the heritage and gift that cometh of the Lord, so different from the old parental joy and pride in a large family, is connected in part with a real difficulty in launching children upon the world, in part with false ideas of the quantity of this world's goods and pleasures without which life is not worth living. It is curious that, in losing its power of being magnificent, the present age has also lost the power of being simple. It is sumptuous without splendour and luxurious without being stately. The duty of "keeping up one's position in life" has become old-fashioned, but the right to have a good time in this world is regarded by an ever-increasing number of people in all classes as one of the postulates of existence.

Pills for Nervous Troubles.—The stomach is the centre of the nervous system, and when the stomach suspends healthy action the result is manifest in disturbances of the nerves. If allowed to persist, nervous debility, a dangerous ailment, may ensue. The first consideration is to restore the stomach to proper action, and there is no readier remedy for this than Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. Thousands can attest the virtue of these pills in curing nervous disorders.

Auto Fire Brigade Pedigrees and Pay

A small fire was discovered in the basement of the Union Bank on Monday afternoon about 3 o'clock. O. W. Hembling happened to be in the bank at the time and he secured a small hand fire extinguisher from a near by store, but it was found insufficient and A. J. Findlay coming along with his car, Mr. Hembling with Coun. Osmond and A. Weber went to the Fire Hall and brought down one of the large chemical engines and Sam Reiber of the fire brigade went down into the basement and soon extinguished the fire. Mr. Hembling sustained a severe cut on the hand from breaking the glass to release the engines at the Fire Hall but it is hoped no serious results will recur from the same. Hembling is the one who thought out this scheme of opening the doors of the fire hall and so far is the first one to suffer by it. However, it is all right if you take something to smash the glass besides your hand.

Mrs. J. E. WANSLEY and FAMILY

The time to pay for a pedigree is when it is delivered. While most breeders are honorable, many are procrastinating, some are negligent and a few are downright dishonest.

In order to protect themselves against loss at the hands of the procrastinating and negligent, buyers of pure bred animals will do well when dealing with breeders of whose honesty they have no knowledge, to withhold a part of the purchase money till the pedigree is supplied or at least to deposit it in a bank to be paid upon delivery of proper certificate of registration. This can be done without exposing either buyer or seller to any risk and is perfectly fair to both. My experience with bank managers is that they are always willing to perform this service for the protection of their patrons.

As a rule the buyer pays over his money or writes his check for the full amount at the time of purchasing and the seller promises to forward the pedigree as soon as possible, then after a year or more of waiting he wakes up to the fact that he has been "done." Sometimes he has sold the progeny of these animals with a promise to supply pedigrees and he finds himself exposed to the danger, not only of disgrace, but also of an action for damages. Now all of this could easily have been avoided by the exercise of a little caution at the time of buying.

The time of year is at hand when every person who contemplates buying a purebred animal should keep in mind the warning contained in our opening sentence, that the time to pay for a pedigree is when it is delivered.

FASHIONS AND FANCIES

TO keep up with the changes in fashion, to be correctly informed weeks and months in advance as to the newest styles, to be able to announce authoritatively what will be worn during the coming season, implies not only a vast amount of knowledge in all matters pertaining to dress, but just now also requires a gift of prophecy and second sight that should make the proud possessor thereof a much envied individual. Never has there been a time when fashion information was so varied and so contradictory. Secret conclaves are held behind closed doors, novel schemes of color and design are given out from time to time, but in a tentative manner, as though they were asking for the approval of the public, not as though the order were issued as a command.

Early Victorian fashions are threatened—there is no other word to express the situation. There are certainly many charming details of this period in dress, but the general effect was unbecoming, clumsy and best suited to hide any natural grace or slender lines. Exaggerated Empire styles are also menacing public safety and even decency, for with the tendency to overexaggeration of any eccentricity of dress that prevails to such an alarming extent nowadays the weak points in fashion are always eagerly seized upon by the great band of would-be conspicuous women, and in these fashions lurk possibilities of exaggeration and eccentricity too appalling to contemplate.

Narrow skirts will not be banished, unfortunately, but the ugly, so-called hobble skirt will not be considered smart. It never has been so considered by really well-gowned women, although it has had a wonderful popularity. The scant but not exaggeratedly tight skirt can be attractive in appearance, provided there is enough width just above the knees, when there is not enough width the skirt draws into the figure in the most ungraceful and unbecoming effect. The newest styles in skirts are quite complicated, but all apparently are designed to give the appearance of being quite scant around the ankles, fortunately calling for more width above—two and a half and two yards in width is perhaps an improvement over the narrower models of the autumn, when skirts less than two yards wide were attempted as a fashion.

Satin is again to be fashionable as a material for spring and summer, a much lighter weight, of necessity, than has been used for the winter costumes, but not the too-light weight, for that is not appropriate. Black Liberty satin gowns, as well as the coat and skirt styles, will be made up in the various designs that have already appeared. For the daytime the short skirt will continue to be in style, but in late afternoon and evening the longer train will once more be popular. This applies especially to black satin. Black crepe de chine, plain and figured, is to be smart, and in colors as well as black the figured or brocade crepe de chine are most effective—not in any conspicuous way, simply from the beauty of design and coloring.

Silk voile, marquisette, and, in fact, all thin, transparent fabrics, are exhibited in endless variety and are to be most popular this spring and summer. Making up gray, white and light materials over dark or fancy linings is one of the marked styles this season, and, although not absolutely a new idea, is carried out so successfully as to give the appearance of being quite the latest notion. It seems a strange skirt. It sometimes is finished at the hem with a fold of state of affairs, an odd taste, that demands that not only the drapery, should be underneath and only show through the transparent fabric. In contradistinction to this, the lining of satin and cloth coats with chiffon has been thought very smart for some time. A brocade lining trimmed with bands of lace or passementerie is veiled with white or pale gray silk voile or marquisette, through which show indistinctly the brocade and the trimming. The waist may, perhaps, reveal more of the trimming, for above where the skirt or surplice folds join at the belt there is a space left that is filled in with the trimming. It must be confessed the effect is attractive and gives the appearance of a delightful disregard of expense, for there are in this fashion two entire gowns, both of good material.

The white gowns for the coming season are fascinatingly beautiful. Exquisite lace and embroideries are combined with rare skill, so that each sets off the other's perfection of detail. The most popular of the lace gowns are on simple flat lines; the figure—that is, the upper part—is sharply outlined. If there are folds of material they are very flat and do not conceal any natural lines. Some of the skirts are made with a scant dounce, sometimes two dounces; others are all long, straight lines, for the straight lines are still in demand.

Most exquisite embroidery, hand work, in silk or in the material itself, is a noticeable feature of the new gowns, and this trimming forms a heavy, deep design around the lining itself but the trimming, far richer than the outer satin, silk, velvet or chiffon, and this is really more effective than the material itself. The colors of the embroidery are the subject of much thought. Whether the same color as the gown or several different shades of the same will be best, or whether some striking contrast will be the most effective, individual taste or the taste of the designer has to decide. The craze for the china and pearl bead embroidery which is now rampant over the land has a certain but limited influence and beads are interspersed throughout some of the most elaborate patterns. This has nothing to do with the beaded embroideries of all kinds or the beaded net gowns, be it understood, which are quite another order of work.

Among the newest models are many very remarkable ones, both from the standpoint of current fashions and from that of traditional good taste. Every law of dress, save alone that demanding originality to the point of eccentricity, is violated by some of the models, which are declared to be extremely smart and which have, in fact, the quality of startling one into an amazed interest, if not admiration. A simple blouse costume—there seems no other word to describe the loosely fitting bodice, which blouses very obviously over the belt, made of Liberty silk—has, for instance, a most elaborate garniture of eyelet hole embroidery around the skirt. There is no trimming on the bodice at all. The blouse buttons down the front, is cut with a round neck and elbow sleeves. The giraffe is broad and made of gathered material, producing the effect of an enormous waist line. The skirt is pleated and also has the effect of being fastened down the front. Except for the elaborate garniture before mentioned the costume is one that would formerly have been considered a girlishly simple frock suited only to the ingenue in her hours of ease, but the striking skirt trimming quite takes the frock out of this class, and yet the extremely informal design seems scarcely suited to any other.

An exquisite new model which would be becoming to a slender woman whose height is sufficient to carry off the elaborate effect of the waist and skirt garniture has a bodice of white embroidered crepe de chine, draped with broad lace deeply pointed, which continues over the arm and forms the sleeves. The lace skirt is cut away to show an underskirt of embroidered crepe de chine. The lace overskirt is finished with deep points on both sides of the front panel; the lace border extends over the train and is caught up the back of the skirt in a highly decorative fashion. The costume is completed with a ribbon girdle and long ends.

It is too late in the season to have gowns made trimmed with fur, and not many weeks are left when the wearing of fur garments, fur trimmed garments or even sets of furs will be possible. In the meantime, however, there will be many a cold day when furs will be absolutely essential to comfort, and a woman will not look smart without them. Besides, from an economical point of view, this is a capital time to find rare bargains in coats and furs of all kinds that have to be disposed of before the next season.

Bands of fur are seen in many of the smartest evening gowns, and the maroon feather bands will be worn on evening and tea gowns all summer. A velvet or cloth gown that looks a trifle shabby in consequence of the winter's wear can now be renovated easily by a band of fur that can be bought for a third of what was asked a month ago. In this country velvet, velveteen and corduroy go out of fashion quite as early in the season as does fur of all kinds, so that it is not the mistake it seems to put on new trimming in order to have the costume look well a while longer.

This is the season when the prudent woman buys most carefully. If she has but a limited allowance for dress she carefully plans, or should plan, what amount she intends to spend for her spring and summer outfit, and also should have some idea as to where her summer is to be spent. To buy too expensive gowns now, too expensive a style, even though the price be low in comparison with the value, is not a wise investment. A model gown that is distinctly new in lines but too light in color and of good material, if marked down to a reasonable cost, will do for next season as well as now, but at the same time this winter's gowns can now be remodelled at little outlay so they will last for the remainder of the season, and then there will be the money saved to invest in the absolutely necessary spring costume.

A REVOLUTION IN MATCH-MAKING

Two hundred and fifty billions of matches are burned every year in the United States. Most of them are made in this country. To make them one hundred millions of "lumberman's feet" of wood are used. The "lumberman's foot" is twelve inches long, twelve inches wide, and one inch thick. Every man, woman, and child included in our ninety millions of population uses, on the average, between eight and nine matches every day. Statistics give put a poor, pale picture of the gigantic size of the match industry. Each match is about two inches long, so the total length of matches burned every year in this country is five hundred billions of inches, or, approximately, 7,922,980 miles. If they were all laid end to end and touching one another, the matches would form a giraffe three hundred and seventeen times around the world.

Until a few days ago a great many of these matches were made at the risk of the match-makers' health, even of their lives. The fell disease known as "phossy jaw" killed hundreds of workers in phosphorus and ruined the health and so degraded the appearance of thousands of others that they hid from human sight like lepers. The trouble lay in the white phosphorus, the fumes from which settled upon defective teeth, and, finding through them access to the dental process and the jawbone itself, set up a necrosis which usually caused the loss of all the teeth of the patient, as well as of the jawbone itself. The familiarity with the disease indicated by the pet name applied to it suggests with horrible clearness how recoiled the poor match-workers were to the deadly risks of their trade.

"Detailed investigation," writes a Federal agent in Wisconsin, "in fifteen factories showed that 65 per cent. were working under conditions exposing them to the fumes of phosphorus and the dangers of phosphorus poisoning. The women and children are much more exposed than the men. Ninety-five per cent. of the women and 83 per cent. of the children under sixteen years of age were so exposed. The fifteen factories investigated employed 3,591 persons, of whom 2,024 were men and 1,253 were women sixteen years of age and over. Children under sixteen numbered 314—121 boys and 193 girls."

One cannot escape amazement at the wonderful courage of the match workers, even though it is so mingled with ignorance. That men should be heroes and face awful death in the service of their country or to save human life in fire or flood is to be expected, but it is not without horror that we find women and boys and girls concealing information about their deadly employment lest they lose the chance to earn a pittance at the risk of their lives or of indescribable maiming.

Various states enacted laws regulating the handling of the deadly white phosphorus, the ventilation of work-rooms, etc., but the ravages of the poison were not stopped. It was not until recently that the process of making non-poisonous matches from sesquioxide of phosphorus was invented and patented. It was bought by the Diamond Match Company, popularly known as the "match trust." That company granted to various independent manufacturers the right to use the process upon payment of a royalty. A bill was introduced into Congress prohibiting the making of poisonous matches in the United States. Thereupon certain manufacturers protested that they could not afford to pay royalties. The company assigned the patent to three disinterested trustees, giving them absolute control of it and of the terms upon which it might be used. Objections were still raised. President Taft wrote to the trustees urging that the owners should have the sesquioxide patent cancelled. This step was taken by the Diamond Match Company a few days ago, and now the process is open to all American match manufacturers free of cost.

The day of the poisonous match is ended.

NAPOLEON'S HANDWRITING

Interesting and exhaustive studies have been made in France of Napoleon's chirography. When a young man, Napoleon did not have a bad hand, although, like some other great men, he could never learn to spell. And when he was an artillery officer his writing was simple and legible, as his life was simple and direct. But when the Corsican Captain Bonaparte distinguished himself at the siege of Toulon, and became the French General Bonaparte, his writing took on what has been called a "furious illegibility."

Curiously enough, from that time there seems to have been a gradual degeneration, until, profoundly discouraged and utterly humiliated, he scratched an undecipherable, windmilled scrawl of submission to the Prince Regent on July 14th, 1815.

It is said that this change from a simple to a confused writing began at a certain date, namely, with a report, skillfully garbled, of the part he took in what Carlyle called the "whiff of grape-shot," that spoke from the steps of St. Roch, on the 13th Vendemiaire (October 5th, 1795).

The culminating eccentricity of his "ortuous strokes of the pen" was exhibited in the letter "p." This letter showed plainly the mental changes of the man who would unhesitatingly de-

Why Do Children Like Zam-Buk

A Chat With Mothers

"Whenever my children have any sore places, cuts, or skin troubles, they ask for Zam-Buk. They can always depend upon it doing what is needed."

So says Mrs. A. Alce, of 170 Chatham Street, Montreal. A missionary, writing from the West Coast of Africa, says: "One boy who was treated for a bad case of ulcer, came back recently and said, 'I like best that green medicine.' The 'green medicine' was Zam-Buk."

Now why should children, all the world over, show such a marked preference for Zam-Buk?

Children like Zam-Buk because, as soon as applied to a burn, a cut, or a sore, it stops the pain and then gradually, but surely, it heals. As soon as the pain of a wound or sore is relieved a child can go on with its play and leave Zam-Buk to finish off the healing.

Mothers might look a little more deeply into the action of Zam-Buk. First, it is highly antiseptic. As soon as applied it stops all danger of feasting, blood-poisoning and inflammation. Second, it is soothing. It cools the wound or sore; always the irritation; stops the pain and smarting. Then, thirdly, it stimulates the cells, beneath the injured part, to healthy action, and causes the speedy creation of new, healthy tissue.

Just try Zam-Buk for cuts, or burns, or cold sores, or eczema, ulcers, rashes, bad leg, piles, varicose ulcers, or any inflamed or diseased condition of the skin. Its effect will highly satisfy you. All druggists and stores, 50c box, or free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful imitations and cheap, worthless substitutes.

share war against the first comer; who would divorce the wife he loved; who would propose a kingdom of Haiti for Louis XVIII.; who would freeze nearly a million men upon the stoppers of Russia. This letter "P" was of abnormal form; it was excessively developed. For twenty years the great general used this extravagant and, according to the investigators, accusing letter, especially noticeable in his later unroyal signature, "NP."

SENATOR DEPEW went into a hotel in Georgia and said to the clerk,

"Where shall I autograph?"

"Autograph?" asked the clerk.

"Yes, sign my name, you know."

Senator Depew signed his name in the register. In a little while in came some Georgia crackers. One of them advanced to the desk.

"Will you autograph?" asked the clerk, with a beaming smile.

"Certainly," said the cracker with alacrity, "mine's rye. What's yours, feller?"

The clerk treated.

Then he leaned back and glared at the senator. Senator Depew felt sorry for him and was somewhat conscience stricken.

"Too bad," he said. "This is what comes from speaking a foreign language in one's own country."

Busy Night at Council Meeting

The Council meeting was held on Monday night in the Council chambers, Mayor Atkins in the chair, Councillors Chambers, Sinclair, Durrer, Osmond, Moyle, Solicitor Patterson and B. A. St. Clair, Sec. Treas. present; Coun. Cooper, absent.

As the Council have been considering the question of selling a debenture to cover the existing indebtedness for the construction of the power plant which amounts to $7,000, the Solicitor had been instructed to write to the brokers to find out whether such debenture could be sold at present. So far only one reply had been received and that was not at all favorable and the Council decided to wait a little longer before asking the ratepayers to vote on same, although some arrangement will have to be made with the Royal Bank to carry the overdraft on construction account.

The policeman and scavenger will make a weekly clean-up of the main streets in town every Saturday on motion of Coun. Chambers and Durrer, which was carried unanimously.

Most of the laneways in town are in a filthy condition and on motion by Coun. Osmond and Moyle the Sanitary constable will notify all ratepayers that manure and refuse in laneways must be cleaned out within ten days of notification.

Bills and accounts in the hands of the Secretary and O. K'd, amounting to $157.56, were paid by the Council.

Coun. Moyle, chairman of Public Works, reported that there was over 1600 feet of sidewalk wanted in the town. Prices for lumber had been received from both lumber dealers, which were the same. A. G. Howe had agreed to put in the lumber for a sidewalk to his house at cost and wished to supply enough lumber to pay off his back taxes.

A discussion arose over whether it would not be advisable to put down some cinder sidewalks in the outlying parts of town, some of the Councillors saying that they preferred this kind of walk to board walks because they were much better. The Secretary will write the C. P. R. to ascertain whether they would supply the town with a carload of cinders and at what price.

B. A. St. Clair for himself and a few other ratepayers in his neighborhood made a suggestion to the Council that they be allowed to put down a cement sidewalk and curbing in front of their residences. All they wanted the town to do was to supply the cement and they would supply the gravel and do the work. The matter is under consideration.

Three by-laws, license, fire and health, which have been amended, were given the necessary readings and will become law after the next meeting.

Coun. Moyle was instructed to prepare the grounds at the park for the celebration on May 24th.

Mr. Atkins stated that Mr. Monroe, Assistant Superintendent of the Forestry branch of the C. P. R., paid him a visit last week and informed him that if the town would assist in plowing and leveling the plot of C. P. R. land to be used for park purposes that his company would supply shrubs and trees and also have a man up from Calgary to lay out the grounds and that they would also put a fence

As it was after 11 o'clock the Council stood adjourned.

Must Have Settlement

As we have still a large number of accounts outstanding we wish to announce that we must have settlement of same by June 1st, 1913, or we will have to take action to collect.

REITZEL & KALBFLEISCH.

C. P. R. Will Assist

Mr. F. A. Monroe, assistant to Mr. Krook, Superintendent of the Forestry branch of the C. P. R., of Wolsey, Sask, which place is now the head quarters for the west of this branch of the big railroad's work, was in town on Friday last and the editor had the good fortune to be able to interview him in regard to the proposed new park on C. P. R. land north of the depot where the band stand is located. Mr. Monroe had been up in the north country looking after work that is under way at different points and stopped here under the advice of his department with whom Mr. H. S. Patterson had been in correspondence in respect to these grounds.

After going over the ground with us he stated that if the town would give them a little assistance in plowing and leveling up the land that he would immediately draw up plans for the laying out of the grounds, and also get a supply of trees and shrubs from their nurseries which should be planted at once. He would also have a man come up from Calgary to oversee and help plant the trees and shrubs. He stated that he would try to get the company to give a good fence along the front of the park and thought that if some arrangement could be made where the tie posts along the front could be dispensed with it would greatly add to the appearance of the park.

Mr. Monroe was very optimistic about making this a beauty spot for the benefit of his company as well as for the town and it is to be hoped that every assistance will be given him by the town to carry out his designs which will cost but very little.

He also called on the Mayor and Mr. H. S. Patterson while here and explained to them his ideas on the matter.

THE Cloverhill Creamery wishes to announce that they will pay 32c per lb. of butter fat for No. 1 sour cream from May 1st to May 15th and 31c for the remaining part of the month. We are prepared to pay the highest market price throughout the summer. R. LeBlanc, Manager.

MR. N. WEICKER will take in hogs hereafter only on Mondays on account of the C. P. R. only allowing to keep hogs in the pens one day before shipment. This will last until we build private yards. M-7
